

RADIO SPOTS

2011 Missouri Livestock Symposium

In the beef program, feed costs and making more money. The latest on pinkeye and trich; standing while mounting, bit education and wound management if you have horses; raising better sheep or goats; backyard poultry; stock dog tips; and news about the food we eat. Those topics and more at the Kirksville Middle School December 2 and 3. No registration and no cost to attend. Doors open to the trade show 4 on Friday. A free beef meal is at 6 and Mike Adams, Host of AgriTalk speaks following supper. Doors open again Saturday at 8. The Missouri Livestock Symposium. Missourilivestock.com for details.

Serious about livestock production? Then don't miss the best producer program in the U.S. Hear the country's best on beef cattle, horses, sheep, meat goats, stock dogs, forages and more. AgriTalk's Mike Adams speaks Friday night after a free meal at 6. See the latest ag products at the trade show. Check out the classic tractor winners. Doors open at the Kirksville Middle school at 4 December 2 and again 8 am Saturday December 3. Educational programs throughout the day Saturday and even a free lunch. The Missouri Livestock Symposium. Nothing better. Guaranteed. Go to missourilivestock.com

Ranching for Profit's Dave Pratt, California, Van Hargis, Texas, Susan Schoenian, Maryland, T.A. Yazwinski, Arkansas, Bridget Wasser, Colorado, and more experts from Missouri and around the country will be in Kirksville December 2-3. Doors open Friday 4 pm. Visit the trade show and enjoy a free beef supper at 6 pm. Then hear AgriTalk's Mike Adams. Educational programs start Saturday 9 am. A Governor's Style Lunch is at noon and a concert by Becky Blackaby Saturday night. It's free except for $10.00 concert tickets. The Missouri Livestock Symposium – the best deal anywhere! Details at missourilivestock.com.

Don't miss the 2011 Missouri Livestock Symposium at the Kirksville Middle School. Touted as one of the country's best agricultural programs, it's also a sweet deal. Everything is free: big name speakers, free meals, no cost to attend, special attractions, great trade show. If you have an interest in livestock, horses, stock dogs, poultry, or forages - this is the place to be. Other great consumer oriented programs and speakers as well. Doors open 4 pm Friday, December 2 and 8 am Saturday December 3. See entire program at missourilivestock.com or call 660-665-9866 for program information or optional Becky Blackaby tickets.

Speakers from California to Maryland on all livestock species, forages, and stock dogs. Free Friday night beef dinner and Governor's Luncheon on Saturday. Classic tractor display, ag. trade show, and country music Saturday night. Mike Adams, Host of AgriTalk, speaks Friday night. Doors open 4 pm on Friday and again 8 am on Saturday. Absolutely free - no registration needed. The Missouri Livestock Symposium, December 2 and 3 at the Kirksville Middle School. Go to missourilivestock.com or call 660-665-9866 for Saturday night Becky Blackaby concert tickets.

Internationally acclaimed Ranching for Profit guru Dave Pratt is just one of over 20 speakers coming in from coast to coast for this year's Missouri Livestock Symposium December 2 and 3 at the Kirksville Middle School. Hear Dave and others tell you how to make your business more profitable. See the ag. related trade show, the newest MU Hydrogen car, classic tractors, and more. Enjoy the free meals with friends and don't spend a penny! If you are involved in agriculture this is the place for you. Doors open 4 pm on Friday and 8 am on Saturday. Details at missourilivestock.com or 660-665-9866.

We have it all right here in Missouri. 20 nationally known speakers on all livestock species. The latest on animal health and management, how to obtain grant money for farmsteads, food history and safety talks, new meat cuts, backyard poultry, a free trade show and free meals beginning Friday night at 6 pm. Mike Adams, host of AgriTalk speaks Friday night. Becky Blackaby performs Saturday night. Except concert tickets it's all free. No registration needed. Doors open at the Kirksville Middle School Friday, December 2 at 4 and again 8 am Saturday December 3. For more go to missourilivestock.com.

The nationally acclaimed Missouri Livestock Symposium opens at 4 pm Friday, December 2 and runs 8 am to 5 on Saturday, December 3. Location: Kirksville Middle School. Big names like Ranching for Profit founder Dave Pratt, Equine clinician Van Hargis from Texas and Dr. Ted Stashak from California; other experts on sheep, meat goats, forages, poultry, and stock dogs. Programs on tornado safety and even how 10 foods and beverages have changed the world. Mike Adams, Host of AgriTalk speaks Friday night. No cost to attend the Symposium and trade show. Check out missourilivestock.com for more info.